

How do you ensure your staff can understand English H&S instructions and training?
How do you record this information for due diligence purposes?

Using a full English assessment when recruiting new staff or appraising existing colleagues, supports objective selection and progression planning within your business and ensures that H&S and Food Safety guidelines and instructions are understood and adhered to.

Basic English Test

- Mapped across to the national framework—English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL)
- Work-related assessment contextualised around food manufacturing
- An online test which objectively measures levels of literacy, listening, numeracy skills and comprehension of H&S and social signs

Advanced English Team Leader Test

- This advanced assessment focuses on terminology used at management level
- Covers a cross-section of skills: literacy, listening, vocabulary comprehension, numeracy
- Supports effective progression planning

Each test package includes

- Access to a searchable database of results
- Minimum of two updates per annum to include:
 - revision of existing test material
 - design of new assessments
 - revision of online learning resources
- Your corporate branding
- Setup and annual maintenance
- Help desk support

Alternative solutions

Eucanlearn is built in such a way that tailor made assessments can be contextualised around your factory. Before a bespoke system with site specific terminology and images is devised, our language professionals talk to you and your workforce to make an objective judgement on what level your employees need to achieve to perform successfully in their roles, work safely and contribute to your company's continuous growth.

Further information:

E: enquiries@industriouspeople.com

T: 0845 543 6793

W: www.eucanlearn.com